PRAISE FOR

The Last Day for Rob Rhino

"Rob Rhino is story on steroids. The novel takes us places we don't want to go, then makes us realize, yeah, we want to go, and stay there."

Shelly Lowenkopf, author of The Fiction Writer's Handbook

"Quirky laugh-aloud satire-with-a-heart, Kathleen O'Donnell's first novel springs surprises and double entendres. Follow the unexpected adventures of a bald socialite on the road to a showdown with her infamous hero."

Robin Winter, author of Night Must Wait, and Future Past

Meet Claire Corrigan.

She's a bald widow on a mission. With a heavy load in a Louis Vuitton carryon, Claire heads to rural Pennsylvania to confront the in-laws she's never met. To get through, Claire partakes with abandon from the traveling pharmacy in her Prada purse.

Aging porn star Rob Rhino's on the same plane headed east, on a mission of sorts too. A reality show has made Rob an unlikely TV sensation, but his past draws him back to the place where it all began.

Claire hates fat, stinky Rob on sight but can't shake him. They've both got big problems. Claire's is in the overhead compartment. Rob's is in his pants. They forge an unlikely bond in an eccentric town where everyone has something to hide.

If Claire's not careful, their dysfunctional friendship might be the death of her.

Dark, quirky, funny, and bold, The Last Day for Rob Rhino, takes off at a breakneck speed and never slows down. Author Kathleen O'Donnell introduces us to a world in which everyone has dark secrets and help comes with a price.

If you like twists, turns and the American underbelly, you'll love The Last Day for Rob Rhino.

AUTHOR BIO

Unlike shoe sales or brunch buffets, Kathleen arrived late to her writing career, crafting her first manuscript well after her nest was empty. Retiring from fundraising in 2010 she wrote, leaping from non-profits to porn stars with a keystone or two.

If Amerasian is still a word, or ever was, she's it. Born in Taiwan to a Taiwanese mother and adopted by American parents, she's lived all over the world.

She and her husband have four children, four grandchildren, and divide their time between Denver, Colorado and Santa Barbara, California.

She loves clothes, food, shoes, weirdos, and Lucy. She's forever grateful for her family, fried food, and the written word.
